

Focus on the Family

Transition Information

What's Happening at Focus on the Family?

What happens to the Focus on the Family broadcast?

Radio will continue to be a staple for Focus on the Family. When you tune in on March 1, expect to hear the type of programming that you've always heard from us: biblically-based advice for marriage and parenting, heart-touching stories and help for families.

You'll continue to hear familiar voices. John Fuller remains co-host, Focus on the Family President and CEO Jim Daly will speak from his unique background and life. Dr. Juli Slattery brings a mom's heart coupled with a psychologist's insights.

In addition to radio, expect Focus on the Family to expand its "hands-on" ministry efforts like our Option Ultrasound program and Orphan Care initiatives.

What will the "new Focus" be like?

Focus on the Family will continue to rely on and promote biblical principles as the standard for helping families thrive. God's truths remain true – no matter who writes or speaks them. Jesus Christ is at the center of our efforts – and has always been – the True Head of Focus on the Family.

Transition Information

Regarding Dr. Dobson's Decision to Begin "Family Talk with Dr. James Dobson":

The decision is not a surprise to Focus on the Family's Board of Directors or to Jim Daly. During the October, 2009, board meeting (where Dr. Dobson and the Board of Directors agreed on how to conclude the 7-year transition process) Dr. Dobson expressed a desire to continue in radio.

On his new show, Dr. Dobson will share the microphone with his son, Ryan, giving him an unique opportunity to share his life's work with his son while continuing to share with listeners his passion to speak to the issues that affect today's families.

So now what?

We're asking that you and your listeners pray.

Pray for Focus on the Family: Our leadership, our people and our ministry. We want to continue helping families thrive, both in the U.S. and around the world. Pray that God will bless and expand this work so that many more families will hear that God loves families...and invites them to become part of His family.

Pray for Dr. and Shirley Dobson as they transition to God's exciting new call on their lives.
